FROM STAFF REPORTS

CONYERS — The Rockdale Medical Center Auxiliary donated $1,953 to the Rockdale County Public Schools Assistive Technology Lending Library for the purchase of software.

"This gift will help us expand communication opportunities for our students and help our speech language pathologists for our students with special needs," said Katie Goldstein, assistive technology coordinator with RCPS. "We will also be able to assess where a student is functioning in regard to alternative communication options, helping us to determine the right type of alternative communications methods for our students who are not yet verbal."

Not only do the RMC volunteers share their time, but they are also committed to providing community outreach.

"The limited funds raised through Auxiliary activities, such as jewelry and book sales, make it possible for us to help others," Tom Scarborough, president of RMC Auxiliary, said.

Rockdale Medical Center is always in need of more volunteers to fill various positions throughout the hospital. If you have the extra time and would like more information about volunteering, please call the RMC Auxiliary Office at 770-918-3007.
